

99 stories about 100 extraordinary individuals

Over 100 years have passed since Ke Ali'i Pauahi's inspiring words were incorporated in a will and testament that reflected a deep concern for the Hawaiian people and the generations to follow.

Her vision was one of faith, hope, and a deep love rooted in a unique Hawaiian culture, language, values, and traditions that were ebbing in a quickly-changing world. These stories reflect the importance of that culture through family and friendships and how these individuals and many others like them have contributed to the advancement and well-being of the Hawaiian people today.
